

THE HUMAN MIND.

It is a Wonderful Vehicle For Rapid-ity of Action. A flash of light is not sluggish, sound travels rapidly, a bullet is no messenger boy, and an automobile which shoots a mile in twenty-eight seconds is moving along certainly. When it comes to getting over the ground in a real hurry, however, to devouring distance in dead earnest, the dreamer marches proudly at the head of the procession. He makes the very latest thing in the line of 150 horsepower racing cars look like hay carts in a mud bank. A man sits in his chair after dinner and dozes. He awakes with a start and discovers, to his surprise, that he lost consciousness for exactly three minutes by the clock. Yet in those three minutes he journeyed from New York to Port Said, transferred himself to St. Petersburg, lunched in Paris and London and sailed up the Nile. What is of greater importance in this connection, he journeyed leisurely, almost indolently. He stopped at various "points of interest" and examined them thoroughly. He met with amusing and amazing experiences on steamships and trains, he talked with acquaintances whom he encountered in foreign lands, and he told some of them precisely what he thought of them. There was genuine pleasure in that. A dreamer can put thousands and thousands of miles behind him in the short space of three minutes and lazily enjoy himself in his wanderings. By comparison the chauffeur, with his life in his hands, is a slow coach, and he must attend strictly to business. He can engage in no conversation or sight-seeing. The human mind is a wonderful vehicle. Some people in species have analyzed it and think that they know what it is and what it can do. But they do not know, and they never will know. - Providence Journal.

Advertising. Until business is successful without a proper store, proper employees and the right amount of capital, it must be assumed that these three conditions are essential to the conduct of profitable trade, and it is no obvious that so long as advertising accompanies the business of profit advertising is necessary for the upbuilding of business. The mere appearance of advertising indicates that business is being done or will be done, and so long as everybody professes to buy of men of success rather than of men of failure just as long will the man who advertises be likely to do the largest business.

$2500 Buys a fine plot of ground three blocks from Main street in the growing town of Mansfield, only four years old, and has 1200 or 1000 people, in the beautiful valley of the Washita. This block of forty acres can be cut up into lots and blocks. Its location is simply superb as a residence section. Its location assures that it be a portion of the town site, and its purchase offers a splendid field for profit taking. It's a snap proposition for a town builder to take hold of, and will not remain on the market long. See us at once.
